

The Burney Society (North America) Biannual Conference:
“Burney Studies: Appraising the Past, Anticipating the Future”
July 3-4, 2020, Montreal, Quebec, Canada

Our two-day conference will take place in downtown Montreal: on Friday in the Rare Books Room of the McLennan Library (home of The Burney Centre) of McGill University, and on Saturday in the Mount Royal Room at the Best Western Ville-Marie Hotel on Sherbrooke Street West a few steps away.

The conference fee of USD$200 ($100 for full-time students) includes a dinner with wine on Friday; Saturday’s breakfast, lunch, and coffee breaks; and a Saturday late afternoon Burney-themed concert by prize-winning Early Music quartet Infusion Baroque. In addition to four panels of papers and a special plenary by Francesca Saggini, the conference includes two Editors’ Roundtables convened by Burney General Editor Peter Sabor, Founder Paula Stepankowsky on the history of The Burney Society, McGill Rare Book Librarian Emeritus Richard Virr on the McGill Burney Collection, and a panel led by Marilyn Francus on the future of the Burney studies.

Registration and Accommodation

Registration for the conference will cost USD$200 and requires current membership in The Burney Society. Rooms at the special rate of Can$205 per night, plus taxes, for single or double, between July 2 and July 5, 2020, are now available for booking at the Best Western. This special rate will be available until May 2, 2020. Call 1-800-361-7791 and ask for the “Burney Society” room block, or go to www.hotelvillemarie.com, enter your dates and the group code “Burney,” and select your room.
